

EXTRA MUSTARD

Prisoner seeks parole so he can watch LeBron win a championship

Print

Photo: Jason Miller/Getty

A prisoner in Ohio wants to be paroled so he can watch LeBron James potentially

BY EXTRA MUSTARD

lead the Cavaliers to their first NBA championship.

Jason Goudlock, a Cleveland native, has served 21 years of a six- to 25-year sentence. In a letter to the parole board, obtained by The Smoking Gun, Goudlock asks to be granted parole so he can help at-risk youths.

"On the lighter side," Goudlock adds, "I would truly like to witness in person LeBron James' pursuit of an NBA championship for my beloved hometown."

Posted:
Thu Oct. 9, 2014

- DeMarcus Cousins catches Nik Stauskas showing off his money

Goudlock also wants the Ohio prison system to retire his number, 284-561.

- Dan Gartland